By the terms of Mrs. Rand's will, the school is to advance the teachings of social science. Goldborough was not a student, but rented a room in the building. He gave violin lessons there and also had some pupils outside.

"When Goldborough came here last November," said Alston Lee, secretary of the school, "he introduced himself as a Socialist, and said he would like to live here. We rent rooms in the building and he took one of them. He did not mingle much with the social life of the settlement."

"I am surprised that he should have attempted the life of Mr. Phillips, who lives across the street from us in sympathy with our aims and has been on friendly terms with us."

"We knew very little about Goldborough's antecedents. I am told that he had been writing begging letters to Mr. Phillips. We had no knowledge of that."

Novelist's Brilliant Career.

David Graham Phillips was born in Madison, Ind., on Oct. 31, 1887. He was educated at the De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., and also at Princeton University, being a member of the class of '97.

He is the author of many works, among the most prominent being "The Great God Success," "Her Serene Highness," "A Woman's Venture," "Golden Fleece," "The Master Rogue," "The Cost," "The Social Secretary," "The Deluge," "The Fortune Hunter," "The Second Generation," "Light Fingers," "Old Wives for New," and "The Worth of a Woman." He has also written essays on public questions in many of the magazines. He was a member of the Manhattan, Princeton and National Arts Clubs.

Mr. Phillips began his literary career as a reporter. He worked on several New York newspapers and then began to write articles and fiction for the magazines. He left the newspaper business about eight years ago to take up the writing of novels. His very few books were successful. He is a big, friendly man and has a host of friends. He wrote one play, "The Worth of a Woman," which was produced three years ago, but failed to please.

For several years Mr. Phillips was an editorial writer on The World.

STORY TOO LONG FOR MAGISTRATE; GO HOME, SAYS HE

Just a Case of Mispliced Tempers, but Carl Wanted to Tell Life's History.

When eighteen-year-old Carl Hecht was arraigned in the Morrisania Court this morning he cast his overcoat and sat upon a table with a dramatic gesture and announced that he had quite a lot to say. Magistrate Appletton, who had his ink stand out of the danger zone of the youth's flying arms and told him to say on.

Carl has been locked up since yesterday afternoon in the Tremont station. At dinner in the Hecht home, No. 282 Third avenue, the Bronx, he had quarreled with his father, Fritz Hecht, because he wanted money and his father wanted him to go to work. The upshot of it was that the son drew a revolver. The father jumped out on the three-escape, climbed down to the window below, then mounted to his own floor again by the stairs and locked the youth in. After this he ran to the nearest drug store, rang up Police Headquarters and called for help. Police man Peter Clancy went around and took charge of the rebellious Carl.

When Magistrate Appletton told him to go as far as he liked this morning, the youth proceeded to use some of the most stylish language that has been heard in a local court in some time.

"About twenty-one years ago, so I am informed," he began in a deep, rolling voice, "my mother, whom you see now before you, was a beautiful widow living in Warsaw, Russia. A band of terrorists invaded the city, one of whom, that man yonder—my father—was which. He wooed my mother and married her and they came to America, where five children were born to them, of whom I am the oldest. But my father is a violent man. He uses evil language to my mother and he beats her with the manner of their first meeting. A year ago his attitude forced me to leave my home. Late last night, I came back, hoping things would be better. But no! No! No!"

"How about this now yesterday?" inquired the Magistrate.

"I will come to that in due time," "Come to it now. Why don't you go to work?"

"That's no I will explain presently. But first—"

"Did you draw a pistol on your father?"

"Your Honor, I shall later explain all these circumstances to your satisfaction."

But Magistrate Appletton waved the young orator aside and called up his mother, Mrs. Hecht, a matter of fact woman, stated briefly that both her husband and her son had high tempers and frequently tore the walls and furniture, who was also present, nodded solemnly, but had nothing to say.

"All of you go home and keep your tempers down. I will call you back later. I will come to that in due time," said Young Carl.

"Come around some day when I've got nothing to do except listen," said Magistrate Appletton.

MONTGOMERY GOT $13,000 FOR OWN USE BEFORE CRASH

Witness at Trial of Former Bank Head Tells of the Transaction.

ACCUSED NEEDED CASH.

Said He Would Be "in a Bad Hole" Unless He Had Money.

It was testified today at the trial of William R. Montgomery, President of the Hamilton Bank when it failed in the October panic of 1907, that on the afternoon before the bank was closed Montgomery sent around to the Tremont branch of the bank for $13,000 for his personal use. The Tremont branch didn't have that much cash on hand, whereupon Montgomery ordered its manager to get it from the other branches.

This was part of the testimony of James S. Goss, the first witness called by Assistant District Attorney Moss when he opened the trial of Montgomery before Judge Rosalesky in General Session. The former bank President is being tried on an indictment alleging the larceny of $14,000 from the bank, one of three indictments returned against him almost three years ago.

In his opening Mr. Moss declared that District Attorney Whitman was not responsible for the delay in putting the banker on trial. He said that Mr. Whitman could not be charged with the acts of his predecessor in office, William Traversa Jerome.

"The day before the bank closed," said Goss, "Montgomery telephoned to me to meet him at the bank. I did so. He said to me, 'Unless we get a large amount of money the bank will not open its doors to-morrow.' He asked me if I could get it from any one downtown. I told him I could not."

"He said that unless he had some money he would put him in a bad hole. He said that some time prior a man had given him some money to satisfy a mortgage and he had used the money for other purposes—some $9,000."

"He went on to tell me that he would be in such a bad hole that he could not extricate himself. He handed me certain papers which had been prepared, notes and checks, some bearing signatures and others indorsements. He told me to take them to the Tremont branch and get the money. I got the money and delivered it to him."

"Didn't He Have Money?"

The witness explained in detail how Manager Collier of the Tremont branch told him he didn't have the money, and that he was in the branch whereupon he telephoned to Montgomery and was instructed to get it from the other branches.

"I didn't get the $13,000," said Goss, "and took it to Montgomery's house. He told me to give it to his wife, but she was not home. I went home and got my father-in-law, who indorsed the notes and checks, and we went to the Union League Club. I found Montgomery there and said to him: 'Here's your money.' 'What did you do with my money?' he asked. 'I gave it to your wife,' I replied. 'She snapped out at me, 'Why didn't you give it to my wife?' At this point Mr. Osborne interrupted and said: 'We don't deny that my client got the money. The question is whether he left sufficient security at the Tremont branch to work.'"

"You admit that Montgomery got the money personally?" asked Judge Rosalesky.

"Yes," replied Mr. Osborne, "and the bank never lost a cent."

Judge Rosalesky asked the jury to disregard Mr. Osborne's statement.

"To work?"

"That's no I will explain presently. But first—"

"Did you draw a pistol on your father?"

"Your Honor, I shall later explain all these circumstances to your satisfaction."

But Magistrate Appletton waved the young orator aside and called up his mother, Mrs. Hecht, a matter of fact woman, stated briefly that both her husband and her son had high tempers and frequently tore the walls and furniture, who was also present, nodded solemnly, but had nothing to say.

NEW YORK GIRL HURT.

Miss Ida Hammond's Foot Crushed by Elevator at Wellesley.

(Special to The Evening World.)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 23.—Miss Ida Hammond of New York, class of '11 at Wellesley College, was injured last evening at Beebe Hall, one of the college dormitories. When on her way to answer a telephone call her foot was caught between the wall and the elevator, and two bones of her right ankle broken. Miss Hammond displayed great coolness and calmly directed those who came to assist her home to the injured foot until a physician arrived.

TWO HELD FOR STABBING.

Tony Sabanski, twenty-three years old, of No. 96 Clifton avenue, Laurel Hill, is in St. John's Hospital, Long Island, in a critical condition as the result of an affray at Jones street and Montgomery avenue, Laurel Hill, early this morning.

He has several stab wounds in his neck and left arm and it is thought he cannot recover.

Stanislav Rubinski and John Pera, both of No. 151 Montgomery avenue, are under arrest accused of having done the stabbing. What led to the trouble is not yet known.

BOLTERS' LINES WAVERING; READY FOR AGREEMENT

through the absence of Republicans, William Barnes Jr., new Chairman of the Republican State Committee, today made this statement:

"I conceive it to be the part of the Republican members of the Legislature not to violate the duties imposed on them by their constituents when they were elected. One of these duties was to vote for a Republican for United States Senator. Further than that they cannot go."

A half dozen Assemblymen from New York City and Long Island said that the pressure on them to vote against Sheehan was tremendous. In some cases hundreds of persons called at their homes on Saturday and Sunday.

No Break With Dix.

While Sheehan and Murphy are doing everything to win over Gov. Dix to the support of the former Lieutenant-Governor, and thus, end the Senatorial deadlock, the Tammany boss insists to his associates that there will be no break between him and the Governor, and that the organization will support the Executive in every feature of his Administration.

For instance, he has started every one and created a great deal of dissatisfaction among his followers by announcing that a large number of legislative clerks will be cut off. Men seeking these places have gone to Murphy for his support, and he has told them that the Legislature will be the Governor in instituting economies and will not fill any useless positions.

One of the Tammany chiefs' close friends and advisers said to The Evening World correspondent to-day:

"One thing Mr. Murphy has emphasized in all his conferences is that he is absolutely in sympathy with the policies of Gov. Dix, and that so far as he and the organization are concerned they will give the Governor the most ardent support and neither advise nor suggest any special legislation unless the Executive approves it."

Stands for Caucus.

"So far as the election of Mr. Sheehan in the Senate goes, Mr. Murphy does not blame the insurgents for their attempt to set up another wing of the party, but he believes they should regard the will of the majority." He agrees young men to win. He would like to have some of those now opposing the organization take an active part in it.

One of the members of the Senatorial caucus so far as Murphy views it is this: The fact that Sheehan is the dominating candidate in the Senatorial contest is no proof that Mr. Murphy, in a personal sense, favors him. The Tammany leader maintains that from the opening of the campaign for the office he has been guided solely by the majority opinion of the organization and the caucus.

"As a matter of record, Mr. Murphy has never once stated publicly he wished Sheehan to win. He has confined himself to the statement that Sheehan seemed to be the strongest candidate so far as the organization is concerned."

To a close friend Mr. Murphy said in reply to a question:

"If Mr. Sheehan were to receive a majority of the votes in a caucus I would consider the minority of the caucus bound to recognize the will of the majority."

"Then in a reversal of the standing of Mr. Sheehan with that of Mr. Shepard you would have Sheehan in the lead, as you now hold Sheehan?"

"Absolutely," replied Mr. Murphy.

DIX STILL SAYS HE WILL TAKE NO PART IN FIGHT.

Gov. Dix, before leaving for Albany early this morning, was asked about the statement of State Chairman Huppuch that this matter died possibly in favor of Democratic Assemblymen and Senators should support Sheehan as the caucus candidate for United States Senator.

"That is a statement by Mr. Huppuch," replied the Governor. "I have no concern with any statement he may make, either in his personal or official capacity. I stand now just where I have stood right along—that is, I do not intend to interfere in any way in the Senatorial situation."

Crew Sticks to Santiago After She Strikes Near Shippan Point Before Dawn.

(Special to The Evening World.)

STAMFORD, Conn., Jan. 23.—The freight steamer Santiago, one of the old Mallory line fleet, bound from Boston to New York, light, strayed from her course early to-day and landed on a jagged rock about one-quarter of a mile off Shippan Point. She lay on the rock midway between the shore and Cow Buoy this forenoon awaiting the arrival of a wrecker from New York. Water flowed in through a great hole in the vessel's bottom, and, despite the big steam pumps, steadily rose. The captain and crew remained aboard.

Pilot Frye mistook Stamford Light for Stepping Stone Light, at City Island, and attempted to leave the light on the rocks. This brought him to grief on the south off Shippan Point, within easy reach of the Stamford Light. It was about 2 o'clock when the big freighter hit the rocks. She remained there despite efforts to back her off. When the exact nature of the damage was ascertained the captain started the pumps and made no further effort to get off the ledge. He went ashore in a small boat and telegraphed for assistance.

The Santiago was bound to New York for a new propeller. She arrived in Boston recently from South America with a cargo of sugar. This had just been discharged.

ROBIN INSANE SAY ALIENISTS WHEN MAN CALLED

Flint, the alienist, and from my own observation that my client is insane. He is unable to consult with counsel in the preparation of a defense. I have tried repeatedly to consult with him and find him mentally unable to be of any assistance to me.

Not Able to Consult.

"This is the last day allowed by the court for a modification of the plea of not guilty to certain indictments and for the introduction of necessary motions. Inasmuch as I have been unable to consult with my client, I feel that I ought to withdraw. I can do him no good under the circumstances."

"If the court assign me to the defense of the accused I will accept the assignment, but not otherwise. I would prefer that some one else be assigned."

"Do it for charity," suggested the Court.

"I am charitable enough," said Mr. Jerome, "and would do a great deal for charity, but this man is crazy and I carry on these formal legal proceedings with reference to his alleged offenses is folly. I would like to have some advice from the Court."

Judge Swann suggested that Mr. Jerome prepare an application for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the sanity of Robin. By agreement with Mr. Charles, Assistant District Attorney, that application will be presented to-morrow.

ROBIN AGAIN BANKRUPT.

Ralph J. Hawkins, John L. Gerety and the Chambers Printing Company filed a petition in bankruptcy to-day against "The Railway Traction Construction Company," which has offices in the Finance Building at Broadway and Broadway street.

The claims of the petitioners aggregate only about $74, but they allege that the traction company owes $50,000 and has assets valued at $5,000.

This is one of Joseph G. Robin's corporations, and Judge Holt designated as receiver, Peter Alexander, who is also receiver for two other Robin corporations. The bond was fixed at $20,000.

DIES IN TUNNEL STATION.

Apoplexy Causes Death of Clergyman From Easton, Pa.

An elderly man, believed to have been a clergyman of Easton, Pennsylvania, died suddenly in the Hudson tunnel station at Thirty-third street, and Sixth avenue to-day of apoplexy. In a notebook in his pocket the police found a written request to notify Mrs. Edward Snyder of No. 12 South Eleventh street, Easton, Pennsylvania. A telegram was sent to Mrs. Snyder.

The man was about sixty-five years old, weighed about 180 pounds, and wore a black suit with a clergyman's waistcoat. His purse contained $5. He carried no valise, but had evidently entered the tunnel from a car and to a seat on a bench, where he died. The body was taken to the Morgue.

MacK Wins $20,000 Verdict.

Ex-Police Commissioner James F. MacK obtained counsel fees and costs aggregating $20,000 from the Sanitary Preproofing and Contracting Company Inc. The jury found that the company had been negligent in its operation under contract for making preproofing, which the Gerards held. MacK successfully formed the combination. He paid out about $2,000. The Gerards refused to pay.
